Professionals Day

Please come and give a warm welcome to:
Professionals Day Guest Speaker
Wednesday March 14, 2007
Wolstein Auditorium
10:30 am – 12 pm

Dr. David T. Wong is the Associate Dean of Research and a Professor in the Division of Oral Biology and Medicine at the UCLA School of Dentistry. He is a graduate of the Faculty of Dentistry at the University of British Columbia and did his graduate training in molecular biology at Harvard University together with clinical training in oral pathology. He is a national and international expert on salivary diagnostics and his cutting edge research has been funded by the NIDCR and NCI for over 18 years.

Dr. Wong is a dentist-scientist focusing his research on the molecular determinants (genomic and proteomic) of head and neck cancer. He is the Principal Investigator of the NIDCR-funded UCLA Collaborative Oral Fluid Diagnostic Research Center and the Human Salivary Proteome project. He leads a team of researchers in translating basic science findings into state of the art clinical diagnostics using oral fluids to develop portable, real-time, efficient and highly accurate diagnostics applicable for any form of human cancer. Dr. Wong is also a leader in the research training and career development of dentist-scientists and oral health researchers.
